AMUSEMENTS.

The Neil Burgess comedy company closed its engagement last night in Widow Bedott, which was also given at the matinee. The company drew well during the week, notwithstanding the bad weather and the drawback of running one attraction an entire week, something that should always be avoided in Memphis, row night the Emma Abbott oper company will open up an engagement at the Theater in Lucia di Lammermoor, Donezetti's work, taken from Walter Scott's novel, The Bride of Lammermoor. The cast will include Miss Abbott as "Lucy Ashton," and Brignoli as "Edward, Master of Ravenswood." The opera is so well known in song and story to our theater goers that it is unnecessary to go into its details. Suffice it to state that it is a of Italy's most popular composers. Already the sale of seats assures a crowded and fashionable house on the opening night, as well as on the following nights of the week and the two matinee attractions. Tuesday night Paul and Virginia will be given.
